8/10/2015 · Squawking 7700—In-flight Emergencies from a Pilot's Perspective. By Ian Petchenik. 2015-10-08. We track hundreds of thousands of flights every day and invariably a few will declare an emergency and possibly “Squawk 7700” during the day. This common occurrence often leads to numerous questions about what the flight is doing and why.

Squawking 7700—An Air Traffic Controller's Perspective on ...

20/10/2015 · Within the en route environment, aircraft will usually not Squawk 7700 unless instructed to do so. If there's a radio failure associated with an emergency, the aircraft might alternately squawk 7600 (no radio) and 7700 (emergency). This alerts ATC that the aircraft is declaring an emergency and does not have an operable radio.

Squawk This! - Code 7700

A sloppy squawk was followed by implicit accusations of incompetence. We pilots need to remember the mechanics are on our side but simply removing and replacing parts without cause is expensive and time consuming. We should expect the best of intentions on both sides of the squawk sheet and that will pay dividends in the future.
